

A Marshall Islands-flagged bulk carrier, G ATLANTIC, was hailed by an entity declaring to be the Yemeni Navy while approaching the Bab el-Mandeb Strait. The vessel was en route from Singapore toward the Suez Canal and displayed her AIS destination as "CREW&OWNERCHN [China]". Though the vessel appeared to be publicly aligned with the Houthi target profile, Ambrey assessed this information to be out of date. There was more up-to-date information on another database which indicated the vessel was indeed Chinese-owned. In February 2024, the same vessel under her old name and ownership was targeted by the Houthi.
ADVICE: Merchant vessels are advised to maintain a minimum 5NM distance from the bulker sailing northbound in the southern Red Sea.
